

The way to conduct balloon meetings, said Captain Honeysuckle, is to follow St. Louis. There the city grinds behind the Aero club, and not a cent of admission is charged to the park, so that the poor people who often flirts are admitted to the party free of charge. Here, when every poor fellow comes around can be turned into a grandstand." Besides, it's a matter of civic importance that the people should become interested in a clean, healthy, safe sport.

Following a discussion of these recommendations, Billions of smaller size balloons were suggested, to be used at no great cost, to accommodate the present facilities of gas plants, and lifting gas, which by the way, is usually different from illuminating or cooking gas, can be manufactured in sufficient quantities to insure long flights. And long flights in the city are a thing to be desired, as they are a thing to be feared.

FEARS RAID

along the United States border were received here today. They were almost coincident with the request, as reported from Washington, of Gen. B. E. Steyer, commanding the department of Texas, for more troops for border patrol. It is believed that the sending here of the Ninth and Thirtieth cavalry will give great relief to the troops already on police duty and an increased efficiency of the border patrol.

However, with nearly 1,500 miles of border, and less than 1,500 soldiers on patrol duty, the task is difficult to protect the international line against ammunition smuggling to the Mexican rebels or raids by rebels on American can ranches, which has occurred on three recent instances. General Steyer has done all possible with the elements at his command and frequently has been compelled to charter special trains to transport cavalry for long distances, only to find on arrival that the rebels have returned over the line to Mexican soil. It is usually impossible to receive advance information of where the raids will be made or the ammunition entered. The department of Texas also has been hampered with much infantry, which compared to cavalry is of little service in the rough country along the New Mexico and Texas border.

400 Rebels Near Fabens, Tex.

News received today is not encouraging. A group of 400 rebels is reported below Fabens, Tex., by customs line riders. Mexican families from the town of Guadalupe today began an exodus to the American side of the line. Word is received by General Steyer that more than 1,000 rebels operating to the east near the border raided the T. O. ranch, a Nelson Morris property, a few miles below Sierra Blanca, Tex.

A report has been received by General Steyer of the skirmish this week between United States soldiers and Mexican rebels, who had crossed the boundary below Hachita, N. M., and raided a ranch on the American side. The report related that troop F of the Third cavalry pursued the rebels to the line in a running fight, the troopers and rebels firing from their horses. No line was hit, as the firing was at 1,000 yards range. The rebels escaped over the border with 37 horses they had secured from an American ranch.

Mexican Troops to the Rescue.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The Mexican government has ordered federal troops to hasten to a point between Hermosillo and Nogales, in the state of Sonora, for the protection of the Americans. Frank B. Curtis and Arthur Cunningham, who are beset by rebels, thirsting for revenge.

The Americans had been left in charge of a mining camp at El Oro and had killed several rebels in trying to protect the company's property from raids.

Army officers along the boundary report to the war department that from the information they gather from refugees the conditions in Sonora are bad, and the same state of affairs exists in the northwestern part of Chihuahua. The war department has about concluded that it will be necessary to strengthen materially the American border patrol on the western part of the line, and as General Steyer has indicated that he probably will need more cavalry, the men are getting ready at Fort Riley, Kan., and Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., to advance and proceed to Arizona and southern California as soon as Steyer gives the word.

For the entertainment of the King of Siam and his family a moving picture theater has been installed in the royal palace at Bangkok.

EXPOSITION COMMITTEE WELCOMED TO CANADA

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 29.—All doubt as to the warmth of the reception awaiting the "Flying Legion" from California, sent hither to promote a better understanding between British Columbia and the Pacific coast states and to interest Canadians in the Panama Pacific exposition at San Francisco, was dispelled in Vancouver today. The delegation, arriving by steamer, was met by the mayor and leading business men, and conveyed in automobiles, flying the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack, to a banquet hall. There hosts and visitors joined in a mighty chorus that rendered British and American anthems. Later the Canadians were entertained aboard the Californian's ship.

eulogy and read the committal service when his father's body was lowered into the grave.

The mayor of Stoke-Newington and the mayor of Hackney, in their robes of office, were seated on the platform with the Booth family. Mrs. Catherine Booth-Clibborn, the late general's eldest daughter, who for years had been estranged from the army, with her husband and their 12 children, sat among the mourners.

Miss Eva Booth, commander of the army in the United States, who arrived in London just in time to walk behind her father's coffin, broke down with grief and fatigue. Mrs. Booth-Halberg begged the audience to excuse her sister from speaking, but the army was anxious to hear the American leader, and she came forward. Bramwell Booth and Mrs. Halberg supporting her.

Worn out by the march, many Salvationists were ready to drop when they reached the cemetery. While the ceremonies were going on fainting soldiers fell on all sides.

Services Last Two Hours.
Though one-third of the program was omitted, the services lasted two hours. Then it was discovered that a special permit was necessary for a continuance of the ceremony, as burials after 4 o'clock are prohibited. The presence of the mayor of Stoke-Newington, who granted the permit, solved the difficulty.

A summary of the will left by the late General Booth was made public today. All the properties held by him as general of the Salvation army, and all like public trusts, both real and personal, including copyrights, are vested in his successor as general for the time being of the Salvation army, to be held by him "upon trusts affecting same."

All the properties held by him as general of the Salvation army, and all like public trusts, both real and personal, including copyrights, are vested in his successor as general for the time being of the Salvation army, to be held by him "upon trusts affecting same."

By a codicil, his small private property, having a net value of $247,192 (approximately $2,400), he gives to the Salvation army, with the exception of certain private papers and memoranda which are given to his eldest son, Bramwell, and a few articles chosen by himself, which are given as mementoes to each of his children and his children-in-law.

Another codicil deals with property estimated to value $5,225 ($25,476), representing money settled on him many years ago by the late Henry Reed for his private use. It was this provision which enabled him to draw no stipend nor remuneration of any kind from the funds of the army.

This is divided among his children, Bramwell, Catherine, Marian, Herbert, Eva and Lucy. Bramwell Booth is appointed executor of the will.

THE THIRD CONVENTION

SOMETHING has occurred that is unusual in journalism. There is general agreement among the articles contributed to magazines of such varied policies as Collier's, Harper's Weekly, and The Review of Reviews as to the characteristics of a political party convention.

In Harper's Weekly, a magazine that has been vitriolic, and even insane, in its editorial attacks upon Theodore Roosevelt, there is an account of the Progressive convention by Edward G. Lowry. The article contains these characterizations:

There may have been others. This nominating mass-meeting was more like a great revival meeting than a national political convention. It was well worth the pilgrimage to Chicago to see it. No person can claim to have a complete picture of political conditions at the moment in the United States who did not attend and note the essential differences between the Baltimore convention which nominated Woodrow Wilson, the Republican convention which nominated Taft, and the Bull Moose convention which nominated Roosevelt.

It was unusual to have such a degree of moral fervor exhibited. It was unusual to have delegates at a political convention find relief for their surcharged emotions by singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "America," "The Red, White and Blue," and other patriotic songs. This was a much more emotional assemblage than any other that has gathered for political reasons in the United States this year. It was the only national nominating convention of the year that did not cause extra bartenders to be employed at the places of refreshments near the centers of activities.

The first day's session disclosed not only this solemn earnestness and great seriousness on the part of the delegates but that they were drawn from a sound body of citizenship.

In Collier's for August 24 there are accounts of the Progressive convention by Richard Harding Davis, Mark Sullivan and Arthur Ruhl. Richard Harding Davis has this to say:

To one whose business it is, in different countries, to report public gatherings, to watch them under stress of strong emotion, to watch them great their party leaders, their generals, returning victorious from the wars, their freshly crowned monarch, the Greenleafs of the Progressives to their fellow citizen was easily the most illuminating, the most impressive. This is not the prejudiced view of a follower of Roosevelt. It is the view of a newspaper reporter reporting what he saw.

At the Taft convention the tumult was as great as was the tumult at the Progressive convention. But in the noise there was a difference. It was the difference between a William A. Brady mob of hired snipers and the shouts of children set free at recess. There was in it something inspired, spiritual, almost uncanny. It caught one by the throat. It was what Stevenson calls "a brutal assault upon the feelings."

The hardened correspondents of newspapers bitterly opposed to Progressivism, who had been sent to the convention to scoff, remained to pray. As many as a dozen of them asked: "What can one say about this? If we tell the truth, people will say we are press agents. This thing has a religious undertone. It isn't a convention at all; it's a gospel meeting."

One writer for a New York paper, who had received instructions to "guy" the convention, telegraphed his chief: "There is nothing to guy. And if I have to guy it, I'll guy it."

No criticism will be against the general character of the delegates.

Mark Sullivan calls attention to Senator Beveridge's distinguished performance, to the enthusiastic spirit which dominated the convention, and to the fact that "two of the delegates who served on the platform committee were William Draper Lewis and George W. Kirchwey, deans respectively of the University of Pennsylvania Law School and of the Columbia Law School. . . . These two men wrote and one of them, Dean Lewis, read to the convention" the plank embodying Roosevelt's recall of judicial decisions.

Arthur Ruhl's characterization of the convention is this:

They were unconscious of the clammy, restraining hand of that "invisible government" of which Senator Beveridge was soon to tell in his opening speech—or if they felt it at all, they were out to fight it.

In this atmosphere of complete and almost delicious approval, the colonel delivered his "confession of faith." It was the most comprehensive utterance he had ever made.

Jane Addams stepped out on the platform to second the nomination of "one of the few men in our public life who have been responsive to the social appeal, who have caught the significance of the modern movement."

It was a new sound at a national convention, this woman's speaking of the "few of our worked girls." The great reservoir of woman's moral energy, so long undesired and unutilized in practical politics; the "demands for social justice, long discussed by small groups in charity conferences and economic associations have thrust at last into the arena of political action"—a new sound, more strange and stirring, even than the moo of the bull moose.

William Menkel, in the Review of Reviews for September, says that DELEGATES, the nearest approach to the Progressive convention "was probably the convention that nominated Lincoln in 1860."

Some two thousand men and women, moved by the new "progressive" spirit, came together in that city from all parts of the country, constituting what might well be called a "committee on the State of the Union." The occasion was, of course, a political convention, and the members of the gathering had been duly elected delegates, but how different this from the ordinary political convention. "A family reunion," some called it; "a prayer meeting," said others.

And such a cause—not the perfunctory ratification of a prearranged program of party bosses, with the object of winning a purely partisan victory; but the aroused determination of earnest, God-fearing citizens to make their government truly the servant of the people and their country a better place in which to live.

How different these delegates from those ordinarily assembled at political conventions. "Not a saloon keeper in the crowd" commented a newspaper man.

In the place of the usual party workers and convention "rounders" there were the plain American business men, clean-cut and successful looking—assuredly not the type of individual who accepts a gold brick either in business or politics—the farmer, the manufacturer, the minister, the doctor, and, of course, the lawyer. Prominent, also, were the teacher, the sociologist, and "up-lifters" of various sorts. Nor could these people be classed as cranks or impractical idealists, riding impossible hobbies.

The reports of all of these writers in all of these magazines make clear the following conclusions concerning the Progressive convention at Chicago:

The delegates to the convention were men and women of worth, standing and earnestness.

These men and women were filled with enthusiasm "for a nobler America for a broader liberty for a fuller justice."

They had a tremendous admiration for and confidence in the man that they nominated—Theodore Roosevelt.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

NOT YET UNDERSTOOD.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
I find that Home Mission Week is not yet understood in Colorado Springs. It is not for the investigation of local conditions. It is for the study of national conditions. Nor is it an evangelistic campaign, valuable as such a campaign might be. It is a campaign of education, information and inspiration. While Home Mission Week itself, November 17 to November 24, will be observed by special meetings every night in the churches, it will be preceded by a three months' campaign of publicity and study. The following are the features of the preliminary campaign:

Periodical advertising: In magazines, religious journals and daily newspapers, presenting in the strongest manner the great social and religious problems confronting the American people, indicating that in the last analysis these are moral questions, and that the church, through its appointed agencies, has an important part in their solution.

Educational material: Newspaper editors will be furnished with material which may serve as the basis of editorial treatment of the modern home mission situation. Pastors will receive free information for the preparation of missionary addresses. Educational and inspirational leaflets will be gotten out for leaders of mission study classes and for general distribution.

Graphic displays: Charts, diagrams and posters, dealing with home mission problems will be issued each week for use in churches and Sunday schools, and in newspapers and magazines.

Study classes: Under the immediate direction of the denominational home missionary societies, mission study classes will be organized for the discussion of home missions, various groups in each church to become responsible for the presentation of the subjects to be discussed during Home Mission Week.

Last Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. the Colorado Springs committee met and organized. Another meeting will be held in the same place Friday, August 30 at 8 p. m.

JOHN V. EWART, chairman.

Colorado Springs, August 29

FROM OTHER PENS

PROTECTING THE BIRDS IN ALASKA.

From the New York American.

To every one interested in the good work of the Audubon society the news that it is making plans to protect the birds and game of Alaska will be welcome.

Alaska seems a long way off, and to the careless the idea of thus spending money in the far north may appear ephemeral, but the fact remains that the society is working for the future.

The society has already done wonders that our grandchildren may not dwell in a homeless land. The latest steps which originated in this city will insure active work to protect the birds already driven far into Alaska by the rush of settlers to northwest Canada.

Bird study will be inaugurated in our public schools, and it is hoped that the children thus instructed will learn the importance of maintaining unmolested what wild birds we still have.

JAPANESE COST OF LIVING.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It was pointed out the other day in these columns that Japan, in order to keep pace with the progressive development of the navies of the world, is planning to spend not less than $175,000,000 for 22 warships to be built between 1913 and 1920. Japanese journals, outside of the subsidized official organs, are now discussing the alarming increase in the price of certain staple food commodities—notably rice, and pointing out the necessity for some abatement of the oppressive taxes. The government has reduced the import duty on foreign rice but, seemingly, this measure is inadequate.

The Journal of Economics of Tokio presents figures to show that the whole income of the Japanese population in 1907 was $13,147,750, which is the equivalent of $27.75 per capita. Since the taxes amount to $16,154,583, providing those who are not provincial and municipal pay less $140 per capita is to be deducted, giving an average of $19 a year for the net income, or about $1.50 a month. In other words, in order to pay in taxes 19.4 per cent of the national income the average man in Japan must live on 5 cents a day.

The proportion of the national income that is devoted to public uses is extraordinarily large in Japan. This writer finds that the percentage thus applied, in the case of seven leading powers, is as follows: United States, 65; Great Britain, 1.14; Germany, 1.34; France, 2.12; Italy, 2.12; Japan, 2.42; Russia, 2.62. It is but a melancholy satisfaction to the Japanese people to be apprised that the Russian peasant is a little worse off than he is. It is not probable that the poorer classes in Japan can practice further economies without actual starvation. The school children even now are going all day without their lunches, and their parents have minimized their slender dietary. The rest of the relief of the fiscal problem will have to be accomplished by substantial concessions on the part of the government. The new ruler of Japan finds himself confronted upon his accession with a pressing economic problem.

SENATORIAL MALEFACTORS.

From the Chicago Tribune.
Senators Bacon, Crawford and Hoke Smith are to be congratulated for defeating the attempt of Senator Bradley to plunder the treasury of the sum of $250,000 for a private corporation by the use of plain mendacity.

It is to be hoped that the state of Kentucky will soon send to Washington a United States senator who does not have to be watched by policemen.

RATS PROVE INNOCUOUS.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.
A lot of ship rats have been seized in various ports of the country and have been given the third degree. All have withstood the terrible ordeal and have proved themselves guiltless of the bubonic plague. We are glad of this, not for the sake of the rats, but on our own account.

It is not the rat which is sought so much as the parasitic flea. This flea is to bubonic plague what the mosquito is to yellow fever. The flea carries the germs and develops them in his interior economy, and then—when he gets a chance bites some one and the plague is started.

If we could get rid of these fleas the trouble would be over. Unfortunately the only way to kill the fleas is to kill the rats, and some rats have great antipathy to being killed before their time. But it is a matter of congratulation that science has done its work so perfectly that bubonic plague has not arrived, and is not likely to do so. Fifty years ago, when bacilli were not invented, we should have been a prey to the plague. As soon as science kills off all the ship rats we may lose all fear of this dread disease.

THE INDEPENDENTS OF 25 YEARS AGO.

From the Kansas City Star.
Persons who think that the present revolution against the old party methods is a new thing, suddenly springing out of temporary conditions or political disappointments, should refresh their memories. For many years the dissatisfaction has been growing. At every election for 40 years an increased number of independent voters have broken loose from party affiliations and voted without regard for the party name. It needed only an aggressive, able and determined leader to start a widening breach in the old parties and open the way for a new one. "The support that Roosevelt is receiving all over the country is proof of this."

Twenty-five years ago James Russell Lowell gave voice to the political dissatisfaction of that time, which was then denominated Mugwumpers. Here are some expressions from speeches by Lowell in 1887 and 1888:

"We should not tolerate a packed jury which is to decide on the fate of a single man, yet we are content to leave the life of the nation at the mercy of a packed convention."

"Is it not the main use of a party platform that a screen may be built of its plank to hide its principles from every profane eye?"

"I do not believe there is a man at this table who for the last 20 years has been able to embody his honest opinion or even a fraction of it in his vote. During all these years no thoughtful man has been able to see any other difference between the two great parties which stood between him and the reforms he deemed essential to the well being of his country than that . . . was in and wished to stay there and the other was out and didn't wish to stay there."

The independents in politics were a small body in Lowell's time. They have swelled into a great army today and Lowell's words are much more applicable now, with the additional party abuses that have developed, than they were 25 years ago.

Exactness

By RUTH CAMERON.

Popularity Papers.—Being the Fifth of a Few Little Talks on the Ingredients of Popularity.

It is not only what you put into a cake or pudding which makes it good, but what you leave out. It is not only because you put plenty of eggs into the pudding and cook it just long enough that it is delectable, but because you do not put in too much salt or any other flavoring.

And so even so with the "huge porridge of popularity."

Among my friends is a young woman who is extremely pretty and very clever; a generous girl, lavish with the money she earns, a cultured, well-developed woman, interested in other people and in the big world. By all appearances, this girl ought to be extremely popular. And yet she is not. On the contrary, her friends are few and far between.

Why is it? Well, it is not because there is anything lacking in the "porridge of popularity," but because there is too much of a certain thing in it, for this girl is one of those people who are so thoroughly exacting that other folks are afraid of them. She wants everyone to measure up to an impossible standard of culture, clothing and character, and she condemns those who fail with no uncertain condemnation. Naturally, many of us common folks are self-conscious and uncomfortable in her august presence and consequently we do not seek her company.

This girl is a type of the people who drive their friends away by asking too much of them. There is such a thing as asking too little of our friends; of failing to encourage them to be their best selves. Stevenson's ideal "to keep my friends without capitulation" paints a friendship in which each shall encourage the other to reach his greatest height. But such encouragement and stimulus is a very different thing from setting one's self up as a judge to condemn others for failing to measure up to an impossible standard of excellence.

Then there is another kind of exactness which is equally deadly to popularity, and that is the sensitiveness of people who are always complaining because their friends do not treat them right. "You have called at Mrs. So-and-so's twice since you've been to see me," "You scarcely spoke to me the other night," I suppose you were too busy with your new friend! Such are the accusations with which these people make their would-be friends miserable, and as no one likes to be made miserable "would-be" is very apt to be changed to "won't-be."

It is said that Atticus, the Greek philosopher, was once asked how he kept his friends so well, and that he answered: "Because I never expect anything of them." That is a rather cynical statement, but it is a certain fact that the person who expects too much of those about him will receive nothing.

NO. 6 LABADISTS

The Labadists were a pietist sect of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries founded by Jean de Labadie, who was born at Bourges, near Bordeaux, on February 13, 1610, and died at Altona on February 13, 1674. He was educated as a Jesuit priest, but having left the Society of Jesus in 1639, he preached successfully at Bordeaux, Paris, and Amiens, where in 1640 he was appointed canon and professor of theology.

Labadie wandered from one sect to another, until gradually his disciples and self-will restricted his ministrations to a small circle of ardent followers, which developed into a separatist sect. When in 1668 Labadie refused to submit to the judgment of the reformed synod he was suspended, and was forbidden to remain in Middleburg where he had located.

Retiring with his followers to the neighboring town of Veer, Labadie sought to gather there and at Amsterdam a congregation of the truly regenerate. His services were attended by such numbers that their meetings were prohibited by the authorities in 1670, whereupon the community of some 50 persons with five preachers were invited by the Pulgrave of Elizabeth to settle at Herford. Their presence raised serious opposition there, and in 1672 they retired to Altona.

Shortly after the death of Labadie his followers having grown to a considerable number, they returned to Holland alarmed by the war which had broken out between Denmark and Sweden, and settled in the neighborhood of the Castle of Wilthe or Thetlinga, in western Friesland. Here they reached the highest point of their prosperity.

In 1680 they accepted an invitation from the governor of the Dutch colony of Surinam, to establish a missionary settlement in his dominion. But the colony of "Providence," which they founded, disappeared in 1688. A similar attempt at New Bohemia on the Hudson, in the state of New York, also ended in failure. The congregation of Wiewert, in Friesland, itself dispersed in 1732.

In their doctrinal teaching the Labadists laid great stress on the necessity of interior illumination by the Holy Ghost for the understanding of the Bible. "The Church for them was a community of holy persons, who have been born again from sin. These alone are entitled to the reception of the sacraments. Hence they frowned upon infant baptism, seldom celebrated the Lord's supper, and declared that marriage with an unregenerated person is not binding. They held property in common, after the example of the primitive church, supported themselves by manual labor and held very lax views regarding the observance of the Sabbath."

The Labadist communities all dressed in the most simple fashion, without adornment, and ate together at three tables, for the leaders, the brethren and the guests respectively. Each family had a separate dwelling, but was obliged to leave the doors open in token of the community of goods. Worship was extremely simple and was led partly in French and partly in Dutch by the "speakers."

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 30 1882

There was no letup in the cold, rainy weather which had prevailed for the past two days.

On account of the repairs to the High school building, the opening of the fall term was put off from September 4 to September 6. The High school building was then at the corner of Cascade avenue and Bijou street, where the Elks club now stands.

Hon. J. E. Orman of Pueblo, who subsequently became governor of Colorado, was in the city. He was then engaged in grading for the D. & R. G. between Espanola and Santa Fe.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 30, 1892

The school board decided to organize a company of cadets at the High school at the beginning of the next term.

Sherwood Aldrich and a party of friends from the east left for the White river for a hunting trip.

H. T. O'Brien, then a prominent harness and saddle manufacturer of this city, was much set up by receiving a request for prices of saddles from a man in South Africa.

THE HASKIN LETTER

THE MEXICAN SITUATION.
III—THE MINING INDUSTRY

By FRÉDÉRIC J. HASKIN.

Nothing contributes more toward bad conditions in Mexico today than the peculiar mining situation that obtains there. From the very earliest times of Spanish rule in Mexico its silver mines have been among the richest in the world, and many have been the castles in Spain as well as in Mexico that have been built by the silver that has been taken out of the mines of Mexico. The "bonanza kings" of our own western country made vast fortunes out of their mining properties, but these were small in comparison with some of the great piles of wealth heaped up in Mexico.

With the advent of the mining and metallurgical engineer a waning industry was revived and made to yield new streams of wealth. With the cyanide process came the utilization of the vast dumps of mine tailings, and of the dirt that was passed over as unprofitable to work. Many an abandoned mine has been forced into a yielding operation with a result that the mines of Mexico have been one of the principal sources of the national wealth and income.

There are today more than 18,000 gold and silver mining claims registered with the Mexican government, their total area aggregating 900,000 acres. In addition to this there are upward of 500,000 acres of claims covering deposits of other minerals than gold and silver in which the ores of the precious metals abound, and comprising more than 12,000 claims. The bulk of these claims are to be found in that region where the revolution is most persistent, and consequently it has hit the mining interests of the country very hard.

Output of Ores is Large.

The total output of silver before the revolution was close to $50,000,000 annually in our money, and the total output of gold approximated $25,000,000 annually. Add to this the $20,000,000 worth of copper and other minerals in proportion, and it will be seen that Mexico is one of the mineral producing regions of the earth.

The Mexican silver mines felt the result of the defeat of 18 in 1 in the United States in 1896, but promptly rallied from that, and had smooth sailing until the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad builders in Canada discovered vast silver deposits in the northwest, and finally forced the production up to 30,000,000 ounces of fine silver or more a year. This knocked the bottom out of the industry for awhile, but by the opening of the revolution prices were profitable again.

The mines of Mexico, at the time the revolution began, were giving employment to a quarter of a million men, some of them having reached the point where they could earn, as native miners, 50 cents of our money a day, but the vast majority of them being rated only as common laborers and drawing 25 cents a day, our money, for their labor. When one remembers that frequently they have to carry ore material out of the mines by climbing up a raw-hide-runged ladder, with perhaps a thousand rungs, each rung two feet away from his neighbor, and that the load ranges from 150 to 250 pounds, carried in a rawhide bag, it will be seen how burdensome has been the life of the mine worker.

Big Wages Spoil Peons.

An even then his quarter a day is more apparent than real. The peon must buy his supplies from the mine commissary, and the prices of supplies in these institutions correspond very well with those of the fashionable shops and stores of a big American city. If his pay when spent in these places does more than keep soul and body together for the laborer and his family no one is aware of that fact. In point of fact, the Mexican mine owner has long since found out that paying a peon too much is vastly worse than not paying him enough. If the peon gets more than he can spend legitimately he goes to drinking and gambling, and these things ruin an otherwise good worker.

It is a kind of business philosophy that one hears expressed by the army engineers at Panama, when they say that if the West Indian laborers were paid twice as much the majority of them would work only half so long—another way of saying that anything beyond a living wage promotes idleness and evil indulgences. Naturally the laboring men do not agree with such sentiments issuing from the well-fed men seated in comfortable club chairs with their drinking glasses alongside.

Peons Leave Mines to Fight.

The revolution has made a heavy demand upon the mining industry of the northern part of the republic. Thousands of peons have left the mines to enter the army of "freedom." They have seen the mine owners amassing great fortunes out of the sweat of their faces and giving them only the most meager living. Of course, a shortage of labor is a most serious evil in itself. But when a heavy price for mine-operating privileges is demanded, and when all the supplies of a mine, including its commissary, are in the hands of the revolutionists, it is not surprising that the revolutionists need so much as taken away, it serves to shut down many mines and to inflict great hardship upon those dependent upon them.

There are a large number of American mining companies operating in Mexico, and the majority of them are in the territory most affected by the revolution. The majority of these are interested in gold, silver and copper mines, but some of them are interested in iron as well. At Monterey, known as the Pittsburgh of Mexico, the American Smelting & Refining company has large iron works, and operates a large number of mines in that region. This is a Guggenheim interest, and is capitalized at $50,000,000. At Batopilas, a company which is the outgrowth of the operations of the late Governor Shepherd, builder of the new Washington, is operating a number of properties and has an output of 2,500,000 ounces of fine silver a year when normal conditions exist.

The Cananea Consolidated Copper company, with its annual output of 15,000,000 pounds of copper, valued at 15 cents a pound, is another illustration of the big mining operations being carried on in northern Mexico, and the Don Estrella Mining company—Don Estrella meaning Two Stars—which has declared dividends of as much as 65 per cent on its gold mining operations, the whole placing one-half of its net

SPRINGS SCHOOLS OPEN SEPTEMBER 3

With new courses in domestic science and manual training added to the curriculum of the High school, and the vacancies there and in the grades filled by especially able teachers, the Colorado Springs public schools will open September 3. Three of the houses on the triangle recently purchased by the school board will be used for High school purposes. One is being fitted for sewing and cooking classes; another will be used by the teacher of drawing and art, and the third will be utilized for other High school classes. Mrs. Margaret Lacey Smith has been appointed teacher of household economics. Mrs. Smith graduated from the Colorado State Teachers college, at Greeley, and also has had training in one of the Boston schools of domestic science. During the last three years she has been engaged in the domestic science department at Glenwood Springs.

It is planned to do the domestic science work in the old Hosland home, which is well adapted to that experiment. There will be a model dining room, where the girls will be taught to serve meals; and next to the dining room is a large laboratory, where all foods will be cooked. Another novel feature is a laundry on the first floor, where washing will be done.

The Sewing Room.
Upstairs is the sewing room. There also is a model bedroom and bathroom. The house will be taken care of by the girls of the domestic science department. A large sleeping porch has been made into a sun parlor, where the girls will sit and sew on pleasant afternoons.

The new department of arts and crafts will be housed in the former Grace church rectory. It is the idea of those in charge of this branch to make the artistic training practical, especially as it applies to home decoration. The work will be in charge of Miss Susan F. Leaming, who studied in Lake Erie college and the University of Chicago. She has worked for several years in various art institutions, giving instruction for some time in the New York Normal and City Training school to teachers, in method and art. Subsequently she spent three years in the Lane Technical High school, Chicago, teaching arts and crafts and drawing. During the last year she has been associated with the Academy of Fine Arts in this city. Miss Leaming is highly indorsed by Chicago educators.

New Football Coach.
The man who will have charge of the brown and white on the gridiron this fall will be Frederick Bair, a Grinnell star, who has been a crack Iowa athlete ever since he entered High school. He will teach history. Mr. Bair is highly indorsed by leading Iowa educators, including Dr. Edward Steiner.

Another new man, George Alexander Barker, will be in charge of the physical education. Mr. Barker is a native of Pittsburgh, graduating from the Central High school there. His university training was received at Chicago, and the degree of bachelor of science was conferred upon him in 1902. In 1905 he received his master's degree from the same institution. His major subject throughout the university course was physiography. Mr. Barker's work in physiography will consist of three classes of freshmen, at the High school annex.

The teachers are required to register today at the rooms of the school board in the DeWolf building. A general meeting will be held at the High school auditorium, Tuesday, September 3, at 8 a. m. At this time the assignments of principals and teachers will be made, after which the principals of the various schools will meet their teachers in the different rooms of the High school. An informal reception for the teachers will be held at the home of Superintendent and Mrs. Cole, 918 North Weber street, Monday evening, September 2, from 8 to 10 o'clock.

ORGANIZE COLORADO ANNUAL "ROUNDUP"

Ira B. Kutch of Ramah, President; Seek to Remove County Fair Here

The Colorado Annual Roundup was made a permanent organization at a meeting at Temple theater yesterday morning, and part of the first business transacted was the appointment of a committee to work to have the El Paso county fair brought from Calhan to Colorado Springs. The idea of moving the fair was started by Ira B. Kutch of Ramah, and was indorsed by all present. Calhan's accommodations are considered inadequate, and the Pikea Peak region met with much approval for the site of the fair.

The committee chosen by the society to secure the cooperation of local business men in the movement is composed of Kutch, T. S. Brigham, William Kennedy of Armo, Chief of Police Stanley D. Burns, Art L. Robinson, F. C. Matthews, William Dunning, B. G. Robbins, H. L. Holland and Ralph Giddings.

Ira B. Kutch is president of the Roundup. The other officers, all Colorado Springs men, are T. S. Brigham, honorary president; Police Chief Stanley D. Burns, secretary, and A. L. Robinson, treasurer. The officers were elected at the meeting yesterday.

Executive Committee.
The executive committee of the new society is Ralph Giddings, H. L. Holland, William Berryman, Charles Patchen, Tom Christopher, Andy Adams of Colorado Springs; Emil Borst, Colorado City; E. E. Nichols, Manitou; Fred Albright, Kiowa; William Parks, Kutch; Jack Hamlin, Pueblo; Felix Reer, Arlington; William Patton, Colorado; Ira Patke, Clyde; James Durkee, Limon; the Holmes brothers, Butte; William Henderson, Kit Carson; Oscar All, Florissant; Henry Hinton, Ordway; John McCarthy, Fort Garland; Dad Van, Eusklirk, Canon City; and E. S. Hooper, Denver.

The Roundup aims to make better acquainted all who have ever been compared with range life. A gathering to renew acquaintances and talk over old times, is planned for each year. Mrs. Martha Albin was made chairman of a committee, which will choose later herself, to make arrangements for a women's auxiliary society.

LOCATE BOY'S RELATIVE THROUGH GENERAL DELIVERY

A 10-year-old boy, Ralph Reilly, came alone from Fairfield, Ia., arriving here over the Denver and Rio Grande late Wednesday afternoon. His parents had sent him on, intending to follow in two or three weeks, and he was to be met at the station by his grandfather, W. A. Reilly. His grandfather failed to meet the boy, and the depot policeman finally took the lad to police headquarters, where he was kept until the officers located his grandfather.

The lad said that his grandfather was a contractor and had been here only a short time. He gets his mail at general delivery, and for want of any other means of tracing him, the police sent a note for him there, telling about the boy. Reilly got the note and came after the lad at 7 o'clock last evening.

Deaths and Funerals

The funeral of Mrs. Horace H. Mitchell will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at Grace Episcopal church, and the body will be taken the same evening by Mr. Mitchell to Philadelphia, the native city of both Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell.

Is This Why English Beauties Are So Fair?

(From London Herald.)
Ever since the discovery that mercurized wax would absorb and remove a substitute for toilet creams has grown rapidly. A perfect complexion can be maintained indefinitely if this remarkable substance is used. Its beneficial cleansing, clearing and preservative action is quickly apparent, and ladies who have been paying as high as a guinea a jar for "special cream" from beauty specialists, soon recognize that mercurized wax outshines them all. It has become so popular that it can be obtained at all chemist shops in the British Isles. American druggists also have great demand for it, in original one-ounce packages. The favorite way of using is to apply it, like cold cream, before retiring, washing it off in the morning.

The axolotl lotion for wrinkles and the facial contour has also become extremely popular. One ounce powdered axolotl is dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this has a splendid effect.

CHAMBER TO ADVERTISE REGION AMONG FOREIGN SCIENTISTS IN COLORADO

The Chamber of Commerce is planning to make known to the foreign guests of the American Geographical society of New York, who will pass through this state next month, the commercial possibilities of the Pikea Peak region. The Chamber made every effort to have the European scientists come here, and when it was discovered that because of the limited time at their disposal and an unfavorable schedule, this was impossible, arrangements were made to let them know of the industries of this region. When they return home their views probably will be embodied in articles on commercial geography. The New York scientific society plans a transcontinental tour.

The body of William T. Bagnell, who was killed in an automobile accident two miles north of Colorado Springs early Wednesday morning, will be taken to his home in St. Louis today by his brother, T. H. Bagnell. The latter came to Colorado Springs yesterday afternoon, expecting to spend several days here with his brother, and learned of the accident. Bagnell was agent for the Cadillac Motor Car company of St. Louis, and well known in that city. According to dispatches yesterday, he was to marry Miss Jeanette Fisher of St. Louis, September 10. T. A. Bagnell declared that he knew nothing of the reported engagement.

Coroner Jackson said last night that he will hold no inquest. George H. Boock, also of St. Louis, and who was with Bagnell when the car turned turtle, is still at Glickner sanatorium, but his injuries are not serious. He suffered a broken collarbone and several severe bruises.

YOUNG MOTHERS

No young woman, in the joy of coming motherhood, should neglect to prepare her system for the physical ordeal she is to undergo. The health of both herself and the coming child depends largely upon the care she bestows upon herself during the waiting months. Mother's Friend prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. It works with and for nature, and by gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, involved, and keeping the breasts in good condition, brings the woman to the crisis in splendid physical condition. The baby, too, is more apt to be perfect and strong where the mother has thus prepared herself for nature's supreme function. No better advice could be given a young expectant mother than that she use Mother's Friend; it is a medicine that has proven its value in thousands of cases. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

FALL STOCK SEASON
 OPENS NEXT MONDAY

On behalf of "The Burns Theater," John T. Burns announces that the management have been greatly disappointed in not securing the expected booking of "The House of the Dead," but have received a definite promise from Lyman H. Howe himself, that this city will be kept in the list for this exceptionally fine exhibit on their spring tour.

Following to secure the above, it has been decided that, owing to the good support which the public have given "The House of the Dead" during the past summer season, they can, with profit to themselves and pleasure to the theater-going public, follow the same immediately with a fall season of stock. This season will commence September 2, Labor day, with a special matinee and night performance of "Nobody's Widow," in which Blanche Bates was starred up to the beginning of this last summer. This is one of Bates' most accessible productions, and has only recently been released for stock, and can only be played in a very restricted territory. Mr. Howe, considering himself extremely fortunate in having been able to secure this play, and promises that we shall be given a production which, in every respect, will equal the road production.

This romantic society comedy calls for one of the most expensive stage settings that "The Burns" has been required to furnish. The house will stand up to its record in this respect and will furnish stage settings which will be a delight to the eye.

It so happens that the leading members of the company have themselves taken part in the eastern production of this play and are therefore in the shape to present this production in the best possible form. Very careful work in the shape of rehearsals has been conducted this week, and there is no question that Monday's production will be an eye-opener to the critical theatergoers of Colorado Springs, who have always shown good judgment and great pleasure in patronizing Bates's plays.

In connection with the commencement of the new season, a rearrangement of the staff has been called for. Mr. J. D. Glass, who acted as producing agent for the summer season, terminates his contract Saturday next, August 31.

With considerable regret, "The Burns" announces the impossibility of securing Mr. Richardson for a further stay. His performances have been of a character that undoubtedly grew upon the public. Nothing finer has ever been seen in Colorado Springs than his "House of the Dead."

Earl Gardner will, for the present, take the position of stage director.

David Mitchell retains his position as stage manager.

The very capable Chicago artist, Tom Marx, is retained for scenic productions, with W. L. Burr as house decorator, whose good work during the present week is an assurance that whatever theatrical effects are called for, we can rely upon having the best. John O'Neil is retained as stage carpenter, with our old friend, Ed Craig, in charge of the box office, and as assistant treasurer.

On Sunday next, a resume of the play will be given in our theatrical columns, and possibly the management will be able to announce the bill for the week of September 3.

Mr. Burns has secured the services of August, experienced theatrical man in New York, with a view of securing special attractions for his beautiful playhouse during the fall and winter season, outside of the stock productions, which will be continued so long as the public show their appreciation of them.

NOTES FROM THE BURNS

Don't miss "Pierrot."
 Just three more times.
 Why not attend tonight?
 Certainly, a matinee tomorrow.
 It's going to be one of the season's best.

Why worry about seats? Call Main 269, now.

We have a most agreeable surprise for our patrons next week.

What will it be? Just wait and see. Anyhow, it's a real surprise.

While a carnival to keep competition, "The Burns" has a splendid audience, as given this week.

Speaking of matinee performances, the one tomorrow, Saturday, is going to crowd all the record-breakers. Walt and see.

As a "matinee idol," there are few actors in stock who have greater "magnetism" than possessed by Mr. Walter Richardson; and as "Pierrot," he is at his very best.

We are as enthusiastic over our orchestra as is the attending public, as even as much so as the capable director, Prof. William Hink.

Practically every piece of scenery used in "Pierrot of the Plains" was built and painted on "The Burns" stage, and handsomer stage settings are seldom presented by traveling attractions at several times our prices.

"Mexican Gypsy Dance," by Barnard, is captivantly rendered by our orchestra. The musical program this week could hardly be surpassed.

Friday night is always well attended, and now that "Pierrot of the Plains" is a masterpiece, there is apt to be a "sell-out."

Small prices in themselves do not indicate a value, for, with "The Burns" theater it is a matter of large capacity, nine performances a week, a thorough business plan of operation, and the public benefits and continues its hearty cooperation.

The prices to our evening performances range from 25 cents to 75 cents; for the matinee, from 25 to 50 cents. Surely these prices are within range of all purposes.

The Burns box office is open every morning at exactly 9 o'clock, which also means a call on Main 269 will get you a quick response. When convenient, secure tickets in advance; there is no extra cost, and the satisfaction is greater.

"MERCHANT OF VENICE," TWO-REEL THANDROSER FEATURE, AT THE MAJESTIC

Antonio, a nobleman and a merchant of Venice, is asked by his kinsman, Bassanio, for a large sum of money. Bassanio wishes to travel afar, in order to woo Portia, a woman of great fortune as well as one of wit and beauty. Bassanio has not the necessary funds to make the trip, and, therefore, comes to Antonio for aid.

Antonio, although a man of wealth, finds that he has no gold, his fortune being represented in the cargoes aboard his various ships at sea. He knows that in a few weeks his ships will return and he will have ample funds, but in the meanwhile he offers to borrow for his kinsman's present need from a notorious money lender of Venice, Shylock, the Jew.

Shylock has long hated Antonio because of his proud spirit, and when he consents to lend the money it is only on the condition that Antonio should sign a bond, whereby, should he fail to return the money inside of three months, the Jew shall receive, in lieu of interest, a pound of his kinsman's flesh, to be cut off by Shylock. Antonio, laughingly agrees to this bond. He knows the Jew desires his death, but feels so sure that in much less than three months' time his ships will have returned, and he can easily pay the borrowed money.

With the money obtained by his kinsman on this strange bond Bassanio travels to the home of the fair Portia. There, after passing a test imposed upon her suitors by her father, Bassanio is finally accepted, and feels that he owes all his good fortune in winning the lady of his desire to his noble kinsman, Antonio.

PART II
 Bassanio is happily married to his lady love, Portia, when he receives a message of distress from his noble kinsman, Antonio, the merchant of Venice. Antonio writes that his many ships, containing all his wealth, have been lost at sea, and that he is not able to pay to Shylock, the money lender, the money he borrowed for Bassanio.

But you all know the story, for you all have read Shakespeare enough to say that this production is one of the very best features ever presented our patrons. Remember, one day only, Friday, August 30, at the Majestic.

of the birthday of Colorado Springs, a reception was held by the pioneer association in the lobby of the court house. More than 800 were present. October 12, 1911, a meeting was called to talk over the advisability of erecting a log cabin for the use of the association. It was decided to build a building either of stone or concrete. Professor Kerr is preparing a genealogical history of the pioneers of the state. The work of Professor Kerr is greatly appreciated by members of the association. The eligibility required for membership in the El Paso County Pioneer association, after several amendments to the constitution, necessitated at the present time residence in Colorado prior to August 1, 1876. A committee comprised of members of the pioneer association and prominent citizens of Manitou succeeded in marking the famous Ute trail this summer. Irving Houbert, chairman of the trail committee, and members named by him, E. E. Nichols, Mrs. R. A. Long, D. N. Heiser and H. T. Reid, have accomplished a wonderful work by preserving for all time the old Ute Pass Indian trail.

Trail to Civilization.
 The formal dedication of the laying of the final tablet takes place this afternoon. Yesterday, through these grand old rocks, mountains the occasional feet of the redmen wore a pathway known as the Ute Pass Indian trail, which proved to be a roadway to civilization.

Yesterday, the pioneers braved the perils of this wild region; went forth in wagons drawn by oxen, mules and horses, the covered sides bearing the inscription, "Pikes Peak or Bust." This motto proved to be the guiding star of the sturdy pioneers, and encouraged many faint hearts to join the caravan, and blaze the way to fame and fortune.

Today the lonely Ute Pass trail lies marked forever, not alone by marble tablets, but by the hopes and fears and joys and tears of the fast disappearing race of red men. We pioneers can never overestimate the advantage of the privilege of being a part of the great foundation of this vast commonwealth of the state of Colorado.

Tomorrow, the good work only begun must continue. It is the duty of every loyal citizen to lend his or her aid to the marking and preserving of every historical spot throughout this state. It is a great privilege to be allowed to live in this age of history making, and the pioneers should guard well their part of duty.

MINE SUPERINTENDENT AND PIT BOSS KILLED

TRINIDAD, Aug. 28.—Superintendent William Tweeddale and Pit Boss Alfred Reppen were instantly killed at 4 p. m., by a gas explosion in the Frisco mine of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company, four miles southwest of Trinidad. They were on a tour of inspection, and the superintendent carried an open lamp. The explosion occurred 1,500 feet from the entrance. Lamps of 40 miners, working 200 feet from the explosion were extinguished but none was injured. The mine is not badly damaged.

Marconini is cured in from three to six days.

Ex-Gov. Brady Is Probable New Head of Transmississippi Body

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 28.—James W. Brady, former governor of Idaho, for next president, and Wichita, Kan., for the next meeting place of the Transmississippi Commercial congress were practically decided upon by the directors today, although the official announcement of the decision will not be made until tomorrow.

The congress went on record today as advocating a federal appropriation of $5,000,000 in aid of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, and $1,000,000 to assist the San Diego exposition in 1915. This was done without the votes of the California delegates, who adhered strictly to the pledge that no financial help should be asked from the United States government. The other delegates respected their scruples, but insisted that the expositions, being international in their scope, should have the support of the whole people of the United States.

Texas Demands Approved.

Col. Ike Pryor's demand that the tariff on farm and ranch products be made commensurate with the duties on manufactured products received the approval of the congress, as did the other Texas resolution that the United States government should continue the improvement of harbors and intercoastal waterways in Texas. The wires in the afternoon brought a protest from an Iowa member against the closing of postoffices on Sunday under the new postal law. Speakers of the afternoon were J. F. Callbreath, secretary of the American Mining congress, and P. E. Quinn, immigration commissioner of the Australian government.

Mr. Callbreath protested vigorously at the policy of the interior department in refusing to locate water and power and irrigation waters and other public utility projects rights of way across the public domain.

A promise of cooperation in a "See America First" movement and bid for American settlers in Austria was made by Mr. Quinn. He called attention to the fact that San Francisco is the nearest English-speaking neighbor to Australia and exactly halfway to London, and he said the Australian tourist should be persuaded, make their trips to England by way of America.

GENERAL STEEVER AND A MEXICAN ARMY MAN MEET

JUAREZ, Mexico, Aug. 28.—Locals of Pascual Orozco, the rebel commander-in-chief, whose whereabouts have been in doubt since his departure from Juarez, was forgotten today. Activities took the place of campaign when Gen. E. Z. Steever, U. S. commanding the department of Texas crossed the international line and was entertained by Gen. Joaquin Terrazas, commander of Mexican federal troops here.

As a Mexican military band played "ragtime," and the general of two nations lunched together, war rumors were laid aside. All is quiet here since the destruction by rebels of the railway, 100 miles to the south. A work train, guarded by infantry and artillery, is repairing the burned railway bridges, and it is reported that the rebels have left the line.

HEAD COVERED WITH WHITE PIMPLES

Went to Ear, Shoulders and Whole Body. Thick and Sticky on Head. Eruption Covered With Blood. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Ransom, Ill.—"The trouble started on our baby when he was only about two weeks old. Started like little white pimples, looked like an old scab of blood and matter. His whole head was covered for a few months then it went to his ears, shoulders, and his whole body. It seemed to come out thick and sticky on his head, while on the other parts of his body it was more like water coming out of the skin. He would scratch until the eruption would be all covered with blood and gradually spread. The last little sore or rub would cause the sores to bleed, spread, and itch. Never had a full night's sleep, restless all night.

"The sores were horrid to look at. It lasted until he was about two and a half years old. Then we saw an eczema advertisement in the paper to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We put the Cuticura Ointment on thick at bed time and put a tight hood on so he could not scratch the sores. Then we washed his skin with Cuticura Soap and warm water twice a day, and he was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. F. Sulzberger, Dec. 30, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Yale Men to Be Called Out Soon for Practice

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 29.—Captain Spaulding of Chicago, leader of the 1912 Yale football team, has just issued a call for the candidates for eleven to report in New Haven, September 3. This is a very early call for the members of the squad to report, fully three weeks before the first game, but Captain Spaulding is anxious to have the eleven thoroughly prepared for the early games this year and then develop the team gradually up to championship form.

The practice will be held in New Haven. Two years ago the experiment having it in some high dry place was tried and the result was disastrous. That was Captain Daly's team and the early work was held at Lakeville, Conn., near Hotchkiss school. The ground was uneven and several of the men were injured. The principal injury was to Arthur Howe, later captain, and as the result of it he was out of the game until the last few weeks of the season. Captain Spaulding therefore has decided to have the heat of New Haven in order to have a safe, level field to work on. When the men went away those who also take them go pigskins left from last year and were urged to do work whenever possible during the summer. Reports have come in of much work except that some of the men have developed themselves into fair drop kickers, and will be ready for treatment by Dr. William T. Bull, the premier drop kicker, when he pays his annual visit to Yale field this fall.

By graduation Yale lost from last year's team two first-class tackles, Jim Scully and Charlie Paul, the former being an all-American player. Elmer McDevitt, the left guard, Captain Arthur Howe, quarterback, and Freeman, halfback, as well as numerous substitutes. But there is a wealth of good material around which to build up a good team for the coming fall.

In the line Yale has remaining two all-American players. One is Ketcham, the center, who has two more years to play. The other is Bomelsdorff, an all-American end. Besides these two is Carl Gallauer of Chicago, a tackle, who was believed by many to be the equal of Scully as a tackle last fall and who played practically the whole season because of the injuries to Scully and Paul. Norman Reed, who was out of the game because of injuries through last year, should develop into a line man this year. McLeish of the freshman team and Green and Wolfe, who also were freshmen last year, will be among the likely candidates for the line. The value of the material from last year's freshman class can only be estimated, for there were only academic men on the freshman eleven.

CARS COLLIDE IN AUTO POLO PRACTICE; PLAYERS NOT HURT

In the football season Washburn has seen the strenuous workouts of some sensational contests in real life, but it is doubtful if it ever witnessed anything more thrilling than the workout of the auto polo teams yesterday afternoon.

Jackson and Sterling are the drivers of the auto polo cars, labeled No. 13 and No. 23 and in the generally accepted number of these numbers the cars were named. There were some narrow escapes in the practice yesterday, for the teams workout with almost as much snap and dash as they display in official games but beyond a few bruises the players drove off the field in good shape and on edge for the opening game this afternoon.

Early yesterday morning men and scrapers were put to work leveling the field of play, and the ground was rolled afterward until the poloists said they didn't want it any better. Washburn field will make an excellent place for the new American game, and those who like strenuous contests are looking forward to something out of the ordinary this afternoon.

YOUSOUF SIDESTEPS BOUT WITH HUSSANE

Hasan Yousof is still sidestepping a bout with Hussane, the Terrible Turk, in a hand-cap any other old kind of a match—and a host of inducements offered him failed to get his name to a contract to wrestle.

Chicago Sandow and Hussane, together with Tommy Ryan who proposes a grapple match between the big Turk and Yousof, that should be a very good one against the Turk. A Geiser, as Yousof's manager has named him, is putting up all sorts of arguments why he does not sign. He understood that he demands a guarantee of $125 to meet Hussane. If he is correct, Yousof will wait here another year before anyone here would get any proposition of that kind.

The Gazette has turned out to be a thing but still, just as his other aliases have been. He was very anxious to have his statement published in which he said he would post a bond of $100 to meet Hussane, but in a match with Ryan, but Yousof and his forfeit have not been since. Followers of the wrestling game have heard considerable of Yousof's alleged willingness to meet the Terrible Turk on the mat, but his attitude during the last two weeks has been such that the fans have come to the conclusion that he wants none of the Turk's game.

Glenn W. Blake, who will referee today's game, has become so enthused over the sport and its possibilities, that he came out yesterday with an offer of a prize of $100 if the same team is able to win the games today and tomorrow. Blake is some handier of an automobile himself, but declared that Jackson and Sterling have driving down to such a fine point that the most difficult feat seems easy. Yesterday's workout served to tune the cars up to concert pitch, and they will be put through some whirlwind paces today during the game. Play starts at 3:30.

Mack is about five pounds lighter and the bout if staged should be a good one in the lighter division.

MASSACHUSETTS STAKE IS WON BY ESTHER W.

READVILLE, Mass., Aug. 29.—Esther W. won the classic Massachusetts stake for trotters which were eligible to the 12 class last spring in the Grand Circuit meeting here today but not until the event had gone five heats. "Long Shot" Cox driving the Pennsylvania owned mare to the front in the last three heats.

Baden the biggest money winning trotter of the year, was picked to carry away the Massachusetts which was established in 1886 and has been won by the greatest horses on the American turf but was forced to third place. Little was thought of the chances of Dorach Medium which finished second.

After the first two heats when Esther W. broke badly Cox succeeded in getting her away in the lead and made every post a winning one. Baden was hard driven in the home stretch of each of the last four heats but was unable to get placed better than third.

Cox won the second victory of the day by taking the 207 pace with Baron A. losing the initial heat by baron too long before making his drive.
